HEREIN LIES

THE REMEDY

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 30, 1919.
Every week the Citizen comes to us across the continent and is the principal factor in keeping us in touch with the interests and activities of our native town.
I was particularly interested in the issue of November 13th which contained an article entitled "Wherein Lies the Remedy," by M. T. G.
It seems to me that this article has struck the key note in suggesting the remedy for the flood of Bolshevism, Anarchism and general lawlessness that is at present menacing our country and its institutions.
As this article suggests, education in material lines has proven a failure; but there is a power above and beyond all this that never fails.
It has been said that Napoleon, when near the end of his power, made the remarkable statement to the effect that spiritual power was mightier than physical force.
Had he understood this force and applied it he would have made a different history for France if not for the whole world.
In the church lies the remedy, only in using the word church we do not mean any creed or denomination, but that institution which elevates the race and raises the sleeping faculties to a higher and better understanding of God and man. I mean the religion as taught and demonstrated by Jesus the Christ.
"Be still and know that I am God," we read in the Psalms, and "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble." These are not mere words but are demonstrable truths.
If we listen for the voice of God we shall surely hear it, not through the auditory nerve, perhaps, but in ways just as unmistakable.
In Isaiah we read, "And thine ear shall hear a word behind thee saying, 'This is the way walk ye in it when ye turn to the right hand and when ye turn to the left.'"
God will fight our battles for us in the twentieth century as surely as he did those of the Israelites when the Lord said, "Be not afraid nor dismayed for the battle is not yours but God's."
Not that we are to sit quietly down while the Reds scatter their anarchistic propaganda, unopposed over our country. Never was there greater necessity for us to be alert and initiative.
Every thinking man and woman knows that quick and decisive action is necessary; but let it be right action, inspired thought will lead to inspired action when we shall find that "the word of God is quick and powerful and sharper than any two edged sword."
The people of America are facing a mighty problem. No mortal mind has as yet suggested a possible solution for it. Riots and bloodshed are everywhere until we are almost ready to say with Job: "Terrors are turned upon me; they pursue my soul as the wind."
It is interesting to note the attitude of Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, in an address before the conference of the Presbyterian Church at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. He says in substance that the church must teach the people to apply spiritual methods to the solution of human problems.
This is not a new theory but one that has fallen into disuse. Moses, David, Isaiah, Paul, Martin Luther and others taught the same thing.
What the world needs is an understanding that the spiritual is worth while. Herein lies the remedy.

UPSON—HODGDON

A brilliant dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Blakeley of Chicago in the private dining room at the Bethel Inn on Thanksgiving night. At the close of the dinner, Dr. Gehring arose and in a few sympathetic words spoke of what the day means in family life, and quoted what he said had always been an appealing sentence to him.
"He setteth the solitary in families," and as an illustration to the beautiful test, he announced the engagement of Mr. Wm. Jewell Upson to Miss Nina Hodgdon.
The rest of the evening was filled with warmest congratulations, as not only the guests of the house were delightedly cordial, but the townspeople present were enthusiastic over the new relations between two well-beloved people.
Mr. Wm. Upson's course among us these years has been marked by such public-spirited and private generosity as to have endeared him to this entire community. No good cause has lacked his support. And the entire village seems given over to a hearty expression of good wishes to one who has given much, the best of earthly gifts has come to him.
Miss Nina Hodgdon and her two sisters have been examples of beautiful New England gentleness to all who have known them from childhood. Miss Nina Hodgdon has long been the admiration of Bethel people—and also in the large circle in which she has moved with such dignity and sweetness.
Wherein she may find herself in the broad life now opening before her—no one doubts that the rare qualities that have distinguished her in the past will mark her future. Bethel rejoices in the love both have for our village, and congratulates itself upon the wide-spread influence for good this marriage will bring to all within our border.
At four P. M., Tuesday afternoon, December 2nd, at the residence of Dr. J. G. Gehring, Mr. Wm. Jewell Upson and Miss Nina Hodgdon were united in marriage by the Rev. W. C. Curtis and departed for a short stay in regions unknown.

SCHOOL MEDICAL INSPECTION

By Taliaferro Clark, Assistant Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

Reprinted from Public Health Reports
With the time for the opening of the schools drawing near it is very desirable that communities, and especially the responsible officials, should take stock of resources for the health supervision of school children. Owing to inevitable adjustments that are now taking place in the national life as a result of the war, and especially in view of the changed economic conditions, the increased cost of the necessities of life, and the strong appeal of greater remuneration in other fields to those engaged in health activities, the importance of adequate health supervision of the children of the land is emphasized as never before in the history of our country.

The Advantage of Health Supervision of School Children

The health of the growing child determines largely the health and bodily vigor of the grown man. The community, therefore, can take no more important step to insure the future of its citizens than that of growing healthy children. In the present state of society an intelligent supervision of the health of the children during the period of school life is probably one of the most potent measures for this purpose and is recognized as such by law in an increasing number of the States of the Union. This is especially true since in but a very few fortunate communities is any attention whatsoever given to general health supervision of children during the impressionable preschool age covering the period from 2 to 5 years of age, inclusive.

Intensive studies of the physical conditions of children in many places have shown large numbers of them to have physical defects which were previously unrecognized and unsuspected. Many of the defects thus shown are preventable and remediable. Their persistence results not only in reduced individual efficiency, but also, in the aggregate, in reduced national efficiency, as is so clearly shown by the high percentage of these found unfit for military service in the physical examinations conducted under the selective service law.

The conditions under which children assemble in school, and not the school

Taliaferro's Cataract Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and various surfaces. Taliaferro's Cataract Cure is not a quack medicine. itself, are largely responsible for much of the sickness contracted during the period of school life and for the persistence of physical defects. The control of adverse causes during this period not only exercises an immediate beneficial effect on the health of the children, but serves most effectively to teach them the principles of personal hygiene, the nonobservance of which is now believed to be mainly responsible for the large annual increase in the number of deaths from degenerative diseases that occur later in life.

Experience shows that the failure to prevent and correct impairment of hearing and vision and to detect abnormalities of color perception, to secure dental attention, to alleviate postural defects, to place the normal child in an environment best suited for physical development, greatly restricts the range of industrial, business, and professional opportunity in adult life. Moreover, a number of defective children are unable to take full advantage of their educational opportunity. They fall behind in school work, become discouraged because unable to keep pace with normal children in their classes, and ultimately quit school poorly prepared for useful citizenship. It is of prime importance to the community, therefore, to take cognizance of these possibilities in order that steps may be taken to prevent them. Furthermore, the control of the communicable diseases in the community can be accomplished more effectively when undertaken in connection with the medical inspection of school children. Altogether, the loss of life, the impairment of hearing and vision, the tendency to degenerative diseases caused by neglect of personal hygiene, and the loss of time in school work render it highly desirable from the economic standpoint alone to inaugurate a measure so potential in the control of the communicable diseases.

A Desirable System of Health Supervision of School Children

An effective system of health supervision of school children should provide (1) for the thorough sanitation of all buildings used for school purposes; (2) for the intelligent supervision of classrooms to detect and correct conditions injurious to the health of the pupils as soon as they arise; (3) for the full-time services of medical inspectors qualified to discharge the sanitary and medical duties of the school physicians; (4) for the full-time services of school nurses; (5) for facilities for dental inspections; (6) provision whereby necessitous children may receive free treatment best suited to their needs; and (7) for a thorough mental examination of all children who fail to progress normally in school work. Objections have been made to health supervision of school children and the treatment of their physical defects on the ground that such measures discriminate against the regular practice of medicine, encourage pauperism in parents, raise the tax rate, and tend to bring about a lowered sense of responsibility on the part of parents in respect of the health of their children. The experience of countries and communities wherein these measures are in full force does not substantiate these claims. It has been found that the more regular attendance of children at school brought about by competent health supervision, and the educational effect on parents of such measures when applied to their children, reflect in time so advantageously on the community as to more than compensate for the expenditures involved in such supervision.

Scope of Medical Inspection

The demands of a reasonable medical inspection of school children are met by the following observations: (1) To examine for the presence of physical or mental defects which make it inadvisable for certain children to attend school; (2) to measure and weigh all children to determine the average physical development by sex and one-year age periods, and the utilization of such standards as an index of nutrition and as a guide to the discovery of harmful causes in the case of children who do not develop normally; (3) to discover, remove, and prevent defects of dentition, hearing, posture, and vision that hamper children in schoolwork and retard their physical and mental development; (4) to aid the health authorities in the control of communicable diseases.

Requirements of a School Medical Inspector

The minimum requirements of an acceptable school physician are: (1) That he should devote his full time to the supervision of the health of school children; (2) that he should be skilled in medical diagnosis, able to advise with and assist the family physician when it is so desired; (3) that he should have a knowledge of bacteriology sufficient to enable him to take cultures, detect "carriers," and otherwise assist the health authorities so that they may be unnecessary to close schools during epidemics of communicable diseases; (4) that he should be well grounded in the principles of personal and general hygiene and have the ability to apply them to school purposes; (5) that he should be competent to prescribe suitable exercises in individual cases to overcome postural defects, and advise with regard to regulated group exercises designed to promote the best physical development of normal children; (6) and that he should notify all parents of the presence of physical defects in their children as soon as these defects are discovered and make reasonable efforts to have his recommendations carried out.

In the selection of a school physician due regard should be given to his ability to direct the seating of children, to make observation of atmospheric conditions in classrooms, to measure illumination and to advise in regard to changes necessary to secure the maximum of illumination with the minimum of visual discomfort, and finally to advise janitors in respect of the heating and ventilation of school buildings.

The employment of a physician engaged in private practice to devote a part of his time to the medical inspection of school children is not productive of good results. On the average it requires the full time of a specially qualified physician to supervise effectively the health of 2,000 school children. Furthermore, the employment of a practicing physician for this purpose is frequently the cause of jealousy and opposition on the part of other local practitioners that negate the efforts of the school physician.

One of the great drawbacks to the employment of a school physician heretofore has been the apparent unwillingness of the school and health authorities to recognize and clearly define their duty in respect of school health supervision. Fundamentally, the duty of the school organization is to impart instruction in health through courses in personal and general hygiene adapted to the needs of various age groups and by the organization of classes in physical training.

On the other hand the function of the health department is preventive and corrective, and as applied to school health supervision should include the medical examination of the children for the detection and removal of the hampering physical defects and for the control of communicable diseases, as well as supervision of the sanitation of the school buildings and playgrounds. In fact, the measure of the mental and physical efficiency of the children of a community will be largely proportional to the completeness of the cooperation of these two responsible agencies in this work.

Dental Attention

Dental defects constitute the most numerous of all defects found during medical inspection. The percentage of children in need of attention to their teeth is highest among those from 5 to 9 years of age, the percentage gradually decreasing in successive older age groups. It is now recognized quite generally by the medical and dental professions that defective teeth are responsible for serious disturbances of the general health. Especially is this true of "rheumatic" affections, heart disease, and gastric disturbances. No system of health supervision of children can be thoroughly effective, therefore, that does not secure correction of dental defects or fail to instruct parents in dental prophylaxis.

Duties of the School Nurse

The school nurse should be directly responsible to the school physician for the proper discharge of her duties. Her activities should supplement those of the school physician and correlate with them. She should have sufficient training to carry out the routine treatment of minor ailments in accordance with directions under supervision of the school physician; she should be required to visit the parents of illing children, when necessary, to instruct them in the care of the sick and in the prevention of disease; she should "follow up" children recommended for treatment by the school physician to induce parents to carry out his recommendations in case of their failure to do so; she should from time to time visit children who have been excluded from school for purposes of treatment, to insure their return without undue loss of time; she should be required to visit children absent from school for three successive days from unexplained causes, and in case of sickness make inquiry as to its nature in order to guard against communicable diseases; she should report the results of follow-up work to the school physician so that they may be properly recorded. The services of the school nurse may be advantageously used during the vacation period in infant welfare work, or in some other form of community health supervision.

Recording and Preservation of the Results of Medical Inspection

Every child should be subjected to a rigid medical examination as soon as possible after first entering school. The results of such examination should be card indexed and filed in such manner as to be instantly available for reference. Immediately following the examination, the parents should be notified, in writing, of the presence of physical conditions which require medical or surgical attention. Such notification should be supplemented by visits from the school nurse, and neglected parents should be advised of the necessity for such attention.

The form used for recording physical defects and other information regarding the school children should be arranged to suit the demands of local conditions. In general, such cards should show the name and address of the child, the name and address of parents or guardian, the exact date of birth, the sex and nationality of the child, the height and weight, the physical defects at the time of examination, and such other information as may be useful. The subject matter should be so arranged as to provide space for recording the results of re-examinations in succeeding years. Such cards should be so indexed as to facilitate the ready results of treatment, and the subsequent development of each particular case.

Dental defects should be recorded on a card of the same size as the medical inspection card, and filed with it. Such cards may be conveniently arranged showing cuts of the temporary and permanent teeth, with spaces for recording the results of dental inspections and treatment.

In every case where the child is excluded from school on account of sickness or disability, the medical inspector should be required to notify, in writing, the parent or guardian, specifying the cause of such exclusion and stating explicitly the terms under which the child may return to school.

HOUSEKEEPING AS A PROFESSION

Housekeeping is not easy work—it is not, in itself, esthetic nor soul-satisfying nor inspiring. It means, very often, that when it is finished for the day, and the worker can look around on a sweet and orderly house, that she is too tired to take any real satisfaction in it. Sweeping and scrubbing and cooking and sewing do not make any part of the poetry of existence. But they are necessary—there lies the real kernel of the question.

On the practical side, the first thing to acquire is efficiency. The woman who studies the problems of her housekeeping, who cuts away from all superfluities that overtax her strength, and who learns how to do all the hard plain things in the quickest way without sacrificing thoroughness, will find that with this study there comes a new attitude of mind toward the work. Housekeeping regarded as a profession in which one may succeed is very much more interesting than housekeeping that is just getting through so much work per day. Study your work and it is easier. There are different ways to do everything, even washing and ironing, and some are infinitely easier than others. I know whereof I speak. Personally, I don't believe in reading poetry or looking at fine pictures while I am in my kitchen. If I am doing my work properly I haven't time to think of anything else. Few women can bake pies well while reciting Browning. Keeping the mind on the work in hand makes the work go better.

But after efficiency, we need the joy of service to sweeten our labor. After all, we are doing these things for those whom we love best in all the world. This newly-filled lamp will shed its light tonight on the children studying their lessons for tomorrow's school; this pan of rolls shall be for supper because the man of the house enjoys them; these little stockings with holes at heel and toe belong to that restless chubby boy of yours who has just grown out of babyhood. You are glad that you can serve them in these commonplace, commonplace ways, making for their comfort. What is there "out in the world"—the place you think of so longingly—that would be equal to the love they have for you and the love you have for them?

So, when these thoughts of the sor didness of "the meaning and the bread" come to you, rest a little and do not try to think until you are rested. When you are yourself again you will see your work at its true value very worthily and nobly mean.

WHY DO WE DIE?

The great cause of death among human beings is disease, and this is a most important fact, because it offers such a great contrast to the animal world. With our intelligence and our laws and our habits of life, we have very nearly abolished death by starvation and by murder. Therefore, except for accident, we should die of old age were it not that for some reason or other, we are exceedingly liable to disease, which is quite a small and unimportant matter in the lives of practically all other creatures but ourselves.

We are now beginning to learn that we bring nearly all diseases upon ourselves, simply because we do unnatural things, which animals and plants do not do. We eat when we are not hungry.

SHOE PRICES

I want to take a little time and some space in this paper, that I may discuss with the readers of this article or advertisement, the shoe situation as it now stands. We will admit that prices are high, much higher than they ought to be but we do not admit that they are out of proportion to the other necessities of life. I have recently paid $6.00 for a barrel of apples and I am perfectly satisfied with the price and surely believe that they could not be sold for less at a profit. I pay 65 cents per pound for butter, 12 cents a bottle for milk and so on down the list, and the producers are not getting any more than they ought to have for their work. We have at the present time a store full of footwear of all kinds which retail price on more than half our stock, is less than we can buy at wholesale. It has always been the purpose and policy of this store to give our customers full value for their money, and this policy has surely been the means of bringing to us a good business which has increased year after year. Our customers have been loyal to us and we surely appreciate it. Now as the holidays are approaching we will suggest that you buy useful gifts and we are sure that footwear of all kinds is always useful and acceptable. We are also positive that we can suit you in Style, Quality and Price.

We are fitting up and expect to have in operation in a few weeks, a modern Boot and Shoe Repair Department. We shall have all new and up-to-date machinery and intend to have as good a repair shop as can be found anywhere.

George Davee will be in charge and that fact is a guarantee that the work will be done right. We shall use the best of stock and our prices will be as low as good work can be done. We shall make a great effort to get the work out promptly. You will be informed when this Department is ready for business. Save your repairing for us.

Cold relief

A common cause of many colds is the sudden checking of the unconscious perspiration by exposure to a change of temperature. Colds whether taking the form of Coryza with sneezing, running nose, and perhaps sore throat, or with chilly and feverish symptoms, should never be neglected in the earliest stages. Serious illness often results from such neglect.

It is well to get early to bed, to get the body well warmed, and most important to have the bowels move freely. There is no safer or better remedy to use at the beginning of a cold than "RAT-SNAP."

Atwood's Medicine. Two to four teaspoonsful will quickly relieve congested conditions, drive out impurities from the system and ward off further trouble. Always keep a bottle in the house. Dr. E. M. McCarty in company with D. E. Hayes, went to Welch's sliding on Thursday of last week, coming out on Monday of this week, reporting a splendid outing, and bringing deer with them. One fine buck was wounded on Saturday. The State Game Commissioner was telephoned for permission to go after him on Sunday. Permission was granted, but the buck did not agree to the arrangements, and eluded the hunters.

Among the successful hunters returning from the woods in Ben Sweet, Ives Toothaker, and Bert Davis, who have been in Aroostook County, near Griswold Station. They arrived home on Saturday last, with one moose, and the limit of deer to each man.

Major David E. Hayes received this week a box of war relics shipped from the war zone in France last April. These relics are on exhibition in the window of the Rumford Drug Company. They are of much interest, as some of the huge shell cases are very much beyond anything in this line before shown.

In a letter to Rumford friends, word was received that Mr. and Mrs. George Pettengill of this town, who are at their winter home in St. Petersburg, Florida, went to Atlanta, Georgia, for Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Darby of that city. Mrs. Darby was before her marriage Miss Florence McKeehan of Rumford.

Anyone in need of jamaica ginger may apply to Deputy Sheriff Niles as a recent seizure yielded 607 three ounce bottles of the stuff packed in five boxes. What a lot of bad colds could be broken up by this consignment!

Most people have two kinds of relatives; the ones they don't like to have around and the ones who don't like to have them around.

A decayed tooth is far more dangerous to the health than a fly in the soup, says the United States Public Health Service. Visit the dentist regularly. Keep the teeth clean.

BRAGG SAYS:

"Another store opening in town? Let 'em open. It will take more than that to close us. "Guess when you come to think of it, the only thing that would put us out of business would be our own foolishness. "Trying to sell good stuff below cost or giving unlimited credit to everybody help the sheriff and the auctioneer make a living. "And when it comes to profiteering on 'Just-as-goods' you have a dead-sure trade-loser. "I tell you, as long as we can get the right stuff to sell we are going to be in business at the old stand. "You don't see the manufacturers of Standard Brands going out of business, do you? Yet they do not all sell the cut-price stores. "Take Grand Union Goods, for instance. You don't find that with the cutters. "Yet such stores increase right along and the sale for Grand Union increases right along. "What's the answer? "Simple enough: The dealers that handle quality goods like Grand Union are not put out of business by cut-price store competition. "Isn't the other fellow who puts you out of business anyway—it's you. "There are always plenty of people who want the best. "Let's give it to them—the best of quality—the best of service—and personal attention—and human clerks. "It's best or bust today."

POEMS WORTH READING

A MOTHER'S MORNING
By Jessie B. Palmer
Today I planned important work
And from high duty not to shrink;
So getting up at five a. m.,
I cooked the meal of cereal and ham,
Gravy, coffee, bread and butter,
Marrying meanwhile all a flutter.

Breakfast over, the lunches for school
Were seen prepared by careful rule;
Two hard-boiled eggs with salt and pepper,
Good home-made bread spread thick with butter,
Some pumpkin pie and a nice, fresh pear,
Make up a lunch that is quite fair.

Then hubby is sent away to his task
With a smile, a kiss and a firm hand-clasp;
Then I get out the car and four girls
I take
To the school in town, great scholars to make
Some shopping I do, then hurry home
To find a few who for milk had come.

Next I eat for a moment with a fragrant pie—
A snack on the porch called me up on time
Then I found a woman to gossip
Who wanted to buy some more today.
I think I ought to tell the story some,
So I had to play at another game.

I ordered food for my family and then Then sat down to write to one of my friends.
The clock strikes eleven. 'Tis time to sleep.
For while hubby sleeps I must make some pie.
The morning has dawned, high place gone astray
With a heavy mother this is the way.

We have high hopes and tiny dreams,
But can't be sure of either, it seems.
We cannot do all the tasks we would;
God grants us to choose out only the good.

If busy and happy in this sweet way,
It will all come right some glad, bright day.

GRANDMOTHER'S CRANBERRY PIE
I have sampled all manner of dishes
In the old world as well as the New,
From goulash to Indian pudding,
From pilaf to plain Irish stew,
But the jewel of party perfection,
Enchanting the palate and eye,
Happens in grandmother's glory,
Was grandmother's cranberry pie.

How well I remember the kitchen,
The sunny and golden of days,
And the table where grandmother drift by Belled out the delectable crust
And sat in it always when she crossed Lullabyed fashion to her
Over the edge of the table,
O, what a creature girl!

Sweet with the memories of hours
And also delightfully faint,
One who of the warm spicy fragrance
Which was her special trait
The shadows and crests of the autumn,
The red of the bright evening sky,
Were gathered and peeped in the oven
In grandmother's cranberry pie.

Cranberry pie's delicious
Newly turned out of the world,
Kept like a part of a nation,
Cyprian, Russian, and old,
Cranberry pie's a comfort,
I never could bear to pass by.
How the glow of all cranberry dainties
Was grandmother's cranberry pie.

Grandmother spent went walking
In dresses way up to her knees,
Her feet trotted, trotted, or skirted,
Her dainty feet were always
In jeopardy as well as July.
But nobody ever could beat her
At making a cranberry pie.

SUNNY CORNERS
There of sunny corners if you only look around.
There of sunny corners that are always to be found
When the heart with sun is shining and the face of sunny things,
And the spirit of the children in the eyes of sunny things.

There of sunny corners,
And they make the world so sweet
When you sit on the grass with a book
For the sake of sunny feet.

There of sunny corners if you try to find.

TABLETS OR LIQUID

make them so
With the gladness you confer and the beauty that you know.
With the blossoms you have gathered from the garden of your life Scatter to scatter in these gardens that are deep with weeds of strife.
If you only look around
Through the love that leads us onward
Where the sunshine may be found.

BEYOND US STILL
Beyond us still, perhaps, they lie,
The softer things of earth and sky.
The dreams unknown, the heights un-climbed,
The songs unsung, the hymns un-chimed,
The little paths that lead away
Across the foam and fringe of May.
The woodland nooks, the scented dells,
The loveliness that springtime yields—Beyond us still the glow and light above,
The song, the beauty and the mystic love.

For we who lift against the storm our restless hearts and our countless shields!
Beyond us still, no doubt, it dwells,
That haven of peace and beauty still,
That Eden of Aprilian spells That have sought through good and ill.

Have struggled for, have trusted on Amid the shadows and the dawn,
Have toiled to win and toiling yet
Mid all the strife could not forget
The spring that came to all true men Came forth the cry, "O, O, I die,
To see the spring come back again,
With all its violet tinctured and all its warm breath of sky!"

NORWAY

Deferred

A delightful affair of Saturday night occurred at the home of Miss Tessa B.
Thibodeau, Danforth street, when Miss Helen Cole of Paris Hill was tendered a surprise shower. Miss Cole came to the village with her sister, Miss Josephine, who was home from Portland for the week end, to do some shopping, and as it was her custom, "run in" to call on Miss Thibodeau. When she was ushered into the living room, the lights were turned on, and she found about twenty of her acquaintances seated there. On one side was a table filled with packages falling out of a "Horn of Plenty," the idea being carried out from the old classical Greek myth that the horn would contain every thing necessary for the guest, and in this case Miss Cole was the "guest," being taken completely by surprise, but she called to the occasion, and opened her parcels, all daintily wrapped in yellow and white. There was a beautiful array of linen in fine variety, cut glass and chicory. The color scheme for the decorations was yellow and white, the Thanksgiving colors, and chrysanthemums were conspicuous. One of the features of the evening was a baby's animal book, drawn in free hand, each guest contributing a page, which created much amusement. This was followed by a guessing contest. The hostess invited her guests to the dining room, which was also decorated in the same colors. Over the dining table was suspended a white umbrella, from which was hung small cornucopias filled with nuts and mints, one for each guest. The light over the table, was draped in yellow, and candles around the room with shades in harmony, assisted in the lighting. The center piece was a mammoth

Lester L. Wilkins was taken to Dr.
Cobb's Hospital at Auburn last week for treatment to his eyes which were seriously injured last Monday. He was struck while attempting to cross the tall step ladder on an iron pipe used in the work. Philip M. Smith, an assistant, caught him as he fell, but was unable to prevent the accident. One eye was badly injured and an operation for its removal may be necessary. Mr.

Wilkins spent several months with Co.
D, 26th Division in the trenches under shell fire, and escaped bodily injury.
"Out of luck" has been his experience since leaving the service as a disciplinary was feared not long ago.

Lake, has sold the old homestead on Woodbury Russell, who will raise the building, work having commenced at this time, and in the spring Mr. Rus-

B. Cummings to sew for the fair, which comes the 10th and 11th.
